Defendant.)

On June 13, 2018, Mercedes Kidd will appear before the Court for sentencing on a supervised release violation. The violation is Class C and Kidd was a Criminal History Category I at the time of sentencing, resulting in a recommended guideline range of 3-9 months in custody. The U.S. Probation Officer recommends a sentence of three months in custody, six months in a residential re-entry center, followed by 48 months of supervised release. The government concurs with this recommendation. The government shares the Probation Officer's concerns regarding the suitability of home confinement and/or location monitoring, given Kidd's demonstrated difficulty complying with conditions of supervision and, as the Probation Officer has characterized it, her tumultuous relationship with her parents. The government is hopeful that the custodial sentence recommended by the Probation Officer will allow Kidd the opportunity to become clean and sober. The government also hopes that the

1 recommend time in the residential re-entry center will provide Kidd the necessary support and structure
2 to enable her to remain sober and abide by the terms of supervision.
